

FINAL REPORT OF THE WORD

The topic we covered for the work for this project is the deforestation of Monte Catria, its consequences and future projects. This required a considerable effort in research, analysis and collaboration between the members of the group. The objectives were to understand the main causes of the deforestation of Monte Catria and to analyze the environmental, economic and social consequences of this phenomenon. The work was divided into different phases, each of which was assigned to specific members of the group. We collected data from newspaper articles and asked for information from a geologist in the area. The data collected were analyzed and selected. Thus we summarized the results of our study in a clear and concise presentation, with little writing and full of images.

During the project, we faced several difficulties that we overcame thanks to effective collaboration and good management of the group. Collecting reliable and up-to-date data and synthesizing it was challenging. Some group members had to contact local experts to get more specific information. As in any group, there were some conflicts of opinion on how to proceed with the work, which we addressed through open discussions. Despite the difficulties, the group work led to very positive results. Each member took on specific responsibilities, allowing for more efficient management of time and resources. Throughout the project, we supported each other, sharing knowledge and helping members who were struggling with their parts of the work.

We understood the importance of taking responsibility for our tasks and actively contributing to the success of the group.

Every member of the team has an essential role and everyone's contribution is critical to the final result.

We have understood the importance of planning and managing time efficiently. Setting deadlines and meeting them is crucial to keeping the project on schedule.

This project represented an opportunity for growth for all members of the group. We learned the importance of collaboration and effective communication. Thanks to an organized approach and the dedication of each one, we managed to complete everything in the established time. It was also nice to be able to let others know the history of our territory and the changes that continue to follow over the years. We "seized the opportunity" to enrich our knowledge about a place to which we belong. The main purpose of our work was to underline the importance of safeguarding the territory and its resources
